

JUNIOR REPORTER CLUB

UK

6 Hours of Interactive Workshops Over Two Weeks

The Junior Reporter Club is a programme for anyone who wants to harness their creativity. The club, in the form of interactive workshops, offers an exciting opportunity for young people to build and develop an array of life skills, take leadership within their own learning and share ideas, and learn from, young people around the world.

The learning outcomes for the workshops are specifically designed to:

- Develop creative reporting skills through working independently and in groups
- Improve English language skills: writing, speaking and listening
- Express ideas and opinions through the production of a variety of communication forms.

The Junior Reporter Club includes practical instruction designed to bring theory into practice through guided project work and group discussions. Students will learn about the various styles of communication used in journalism.

The workshops cover:

- Group work & discussions
- Filming & Photography
- Interviewing
- Presentation of reports

Learning through projects is particularly motivating for young learners and helps them remember the language that they learn. At the end of the programme, students use English and the reporting techniques learned in the course to produce a final project in the form of a newspaper/magazine article or a short news broadcast.
